

Leadership in Action

StriveTogether

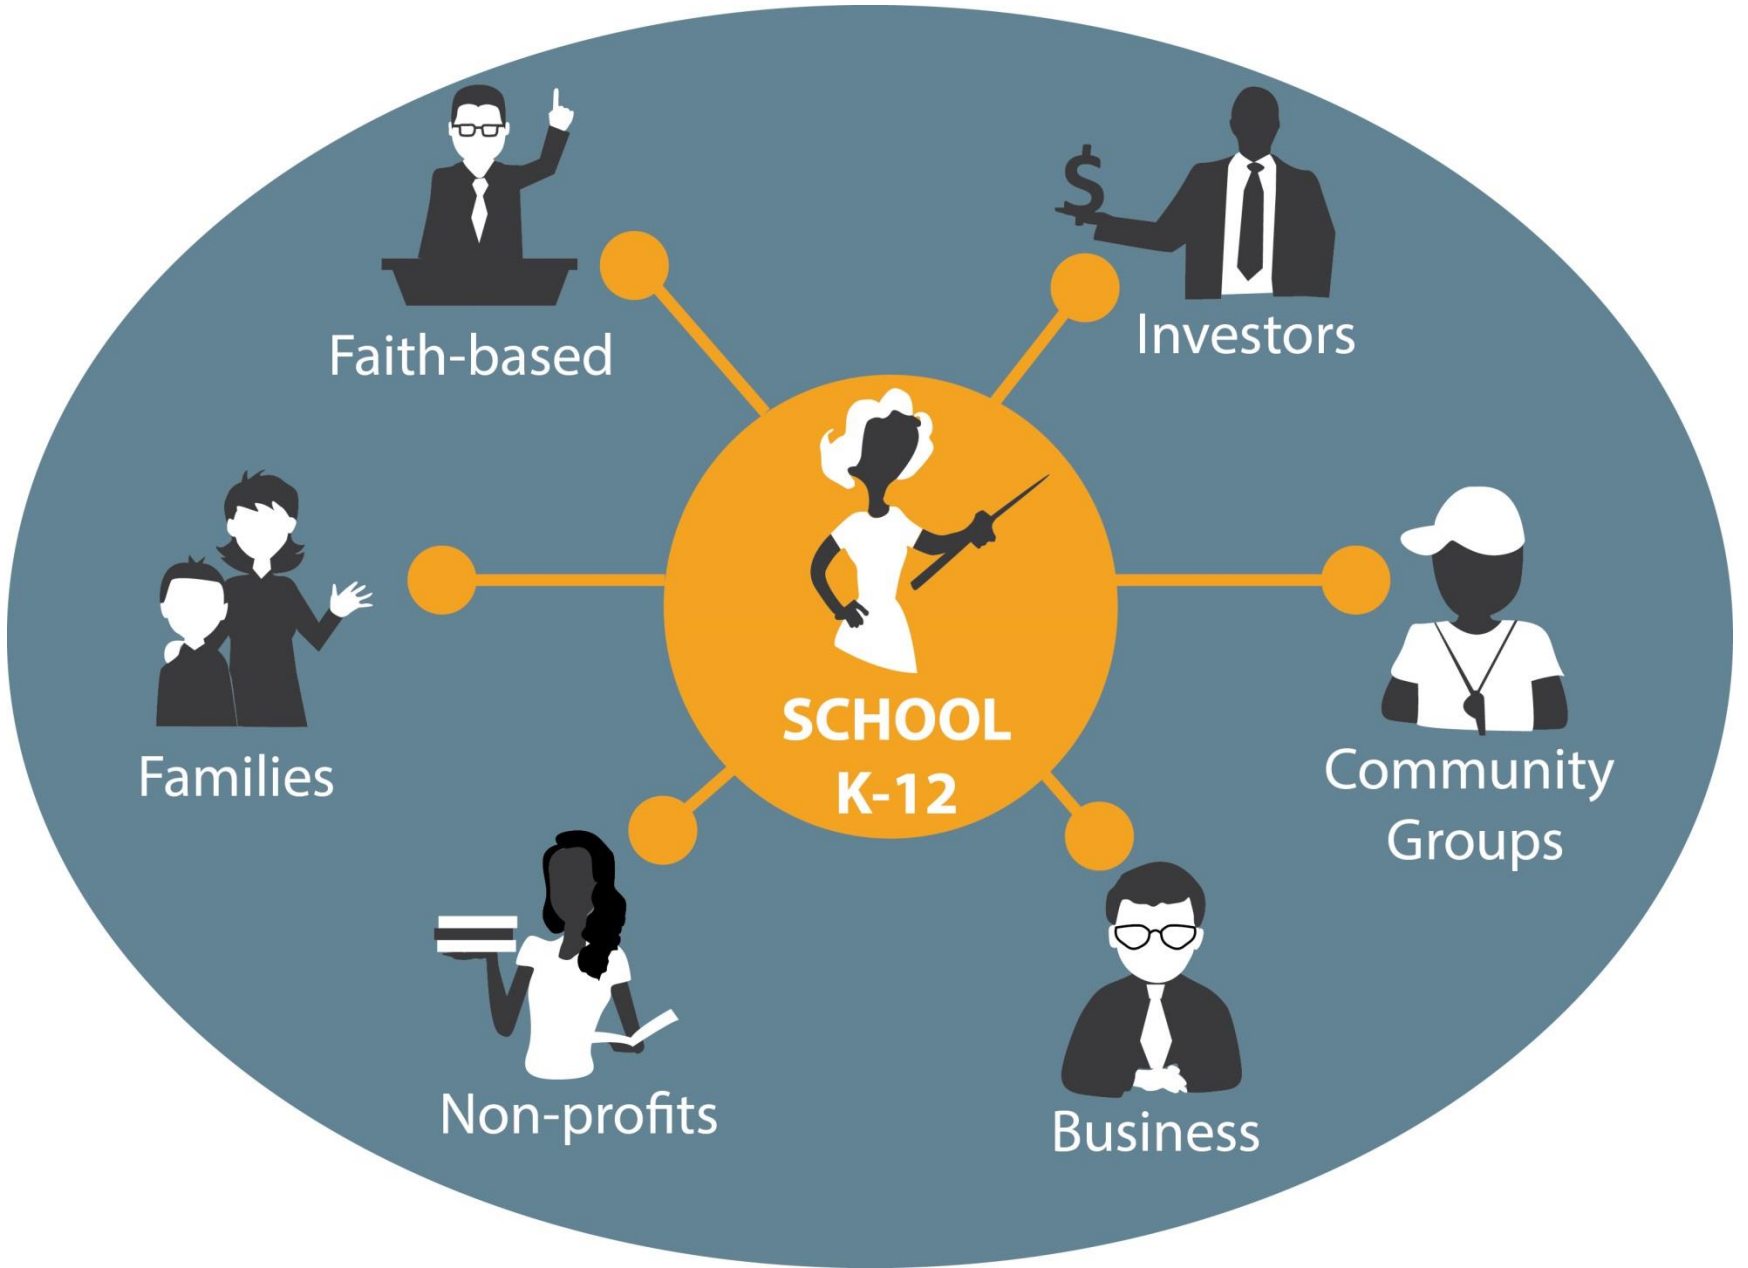

Every child. Cradle to career.

This work requires a complete paradigm shift.

For example, we are moving from a focus on institutions at the center.....

To the child at the center.....

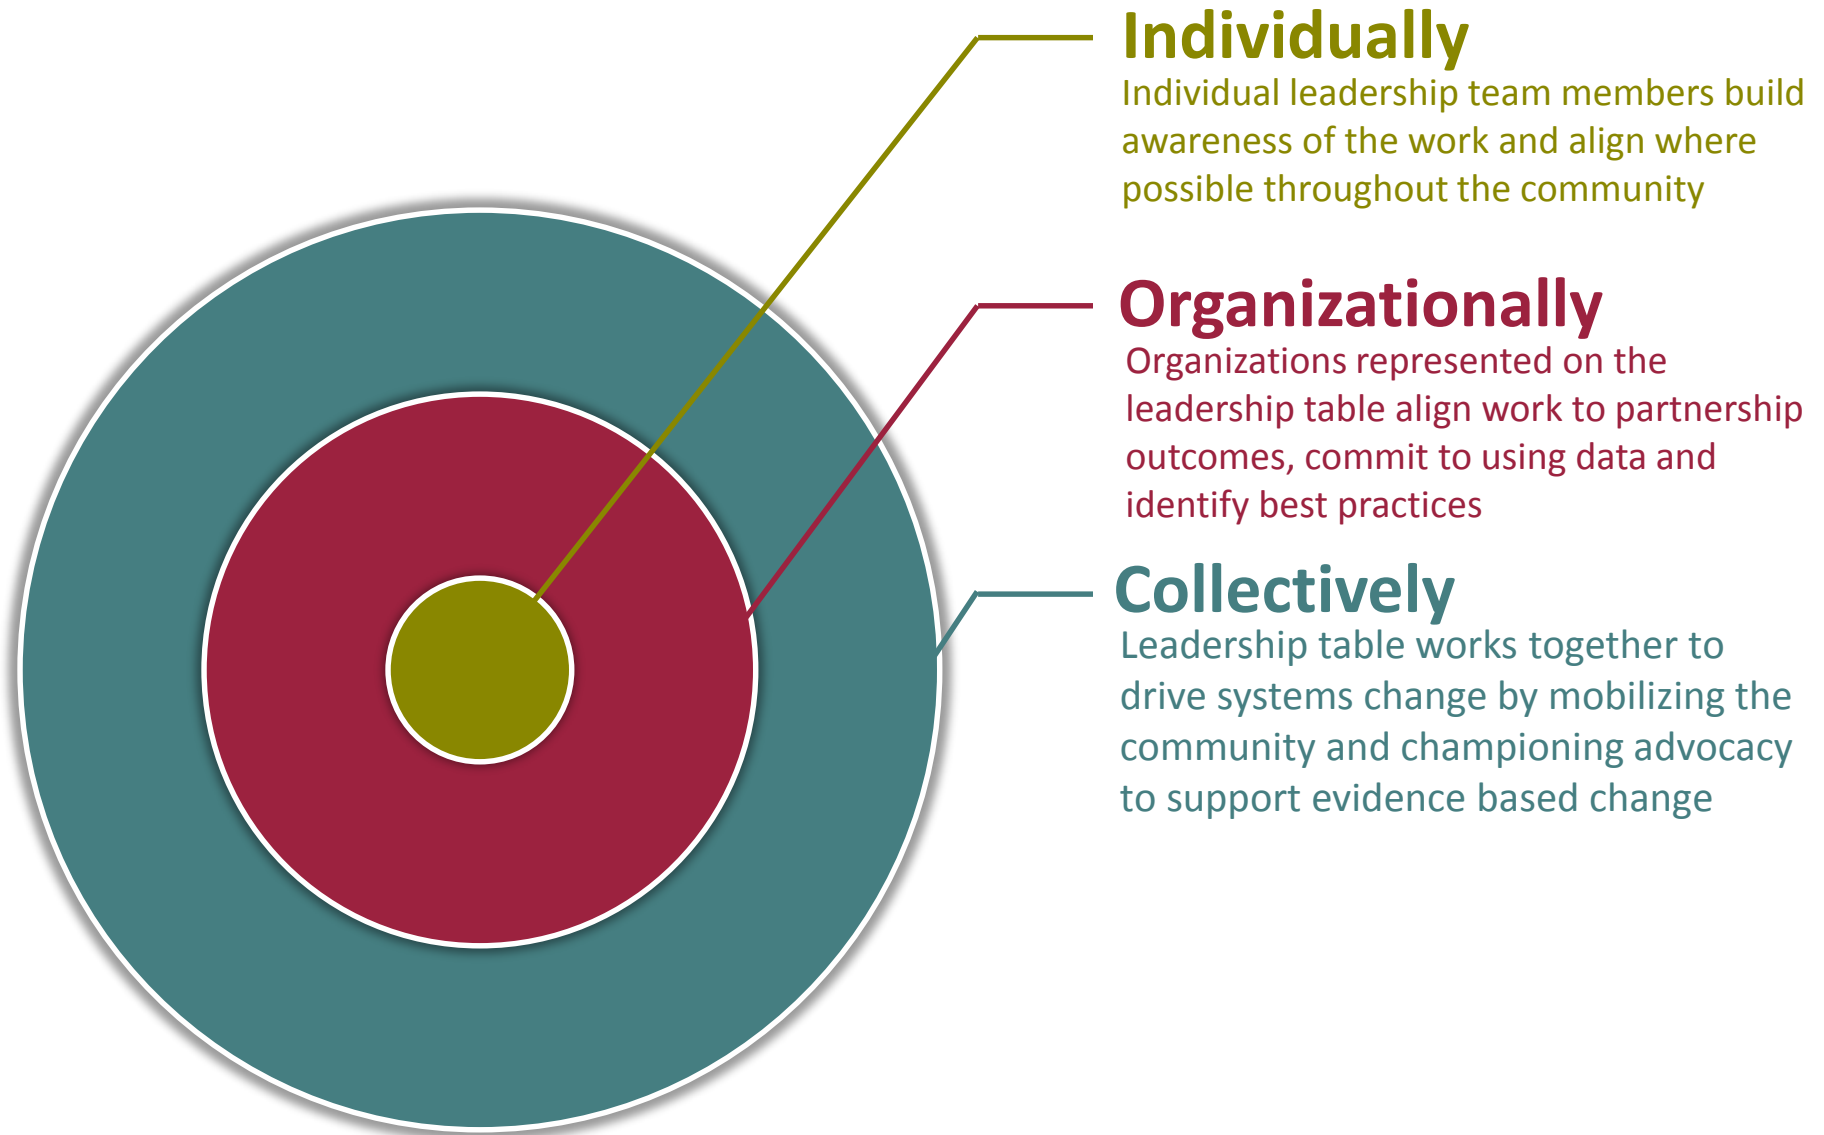

This will require all partners to work differently every single day at three levels:

- Individually
- Organizationally
- Collectively

Leadership can take action . . .

Examples of Leadership Action

Type of Action	Partnership Development
	Early Stage	Middle Stage	Late Stage
Individual 	Speak to the work of the partnership regularly in the community at events or on a board	Advocate for collection and utilization of data on a non-profit board or use of data to inform decision on the board of a philanthropy	Work to get on the board of key orgs /partners or speak to groups that are struggling to find ways to engage
Organization 	Adopt partnership outcomes as a part of strategic plan and ensure staff understand connection to overall vision	Provide programmatic data on work related to a partnership outcome to enable continuous improvement	Change work of organization – practitioner, investor, policymaker – to adopt or support practices identified as impactful
Collective 	Leverage partner resources to align and support development of partnership structure	Champion mobilization campaign to engage and tap into community resources to support outcome improvement	Develop and champion a policy and advocacy agenda to remove barriers and spread best practices identified by partnership

Action Commitments

Clear commitments to take tangible action within a specified timeframe

“What can we do collectively as the leadership table to drive systems change by supporting evidence based practice, mobilizing the community and championing advocacy?”

“What can my organization do to align our work to the partnership outcomes, use data differently and identify best practices?”

“What can I do individually in the multiple roles I play in the community to build awareness and alignment with the partnership?”

Action Commitments

Clear commitments to take tangible action within a specified timeframe

Each leadership table member is asked to report out on progress on their action commitments at one or all three levels at the start of the next meeting.
