Workshop Track Key

Equity
This track focuses on how to develop and implement equity-led strategies, including staff and leadership table composition, necessary knowledge and capabilities, prioritization of strategies to close disparity gaps and execution of a shared, equity-focused action plan.

Leadership & Talent
This track focuses on how to source, deploy, develop and retain high-quality talent and leadership within each community.

Data & Information
This track focuses on collecting relevant data, translating that data into actionable information and integrating it into an organized infrastructure to aid decision making.

Practice Improvement & Acceleration
This track focuses on how to apply data and information to continuously improve, and how to implement and spread practices that accelerate outcomes.

Communications & Engagement
This track focuses on how to communicate consistent and compelling messages, authentically engage stakeholders for input and build strong, aligned partner relationships.

Policy, Advocacy & Mobilization
This track focuses on identifying key policy issues, aligning on priorities, developing coalitions and mobilizing stakeholders for advocacy.

Sustainable Resources
This track focuses on how to secure strategic, long-term resourcing that spreads effective practices, propels high-potential initiatives and sustains community infrastructure.

ROLE ALIKES

We’re excited to offer Cradle to Career Network members the opportunity to meet with staff at other partnerships in the same role. The results of these role alikes are to:

- Facilitate introductions and networking
- Identify priority topics and make connections on those topics across the Network

4:30PM – 6:00PM

Advanced partnership directors

ISSAQUAH

- Eleni Towner and Ritika Kurup, StriveTogether
  This role alike is for executive directors of partnerships operating in the sustaining gateway or designated as systems change or proof point.

Chief operating officers

JEFFERSON

- Brittany Speed, StriveTogether
  This role alike is for those focused on the operations of a partnership.

Communications

BOREN

- Dawn Raftery and Elizabeth Male, StriveTogether
  This role alike is for communications staff.

Community engagement

RAVENNA C

- Tanisha Pleasant, StriveTogether
  This role alike is for those focused on community engagement.

Data managers

RAVENNA AB

- Mike Mozina, StriveTogether, and Rolando Fernando, StrivePartnership
  This role alike is for partnership data staff.

Development

KIRKLAND

- Colin Groth, StriveTogether
  This role alike is for those focused on development.

Emerging directors

MEDINA

- Christian Motley, StriveTogether
  This role alike is for executive directors at partnerships in the emerging gateway.

Facilitators

SENECA

- Colleen Maleski, StriveTogether, and Kayla Brooks, Seeding Success
  This role alike is for facilitators.

SEATTLE ART MUSEUM

Welcome reception
Join this reception to kick off the 2018 Cradle to Career Network Convening and connect with your Network member peers.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 11, 2018

OPENING PLENARY

8:00AM – 9:30AM
METROPOLITAN BALLROOM

Community engagement is not musical chairs: Add more seats

• Jennifer Blatz, StriveTogether, president and CEO
• Network members

StriveTogether was founded on a simple principle: Those who care about their community’s children — from parents and educators to civic leaders and local employers — can accomplish more by working together than by working apart. Across the country, Cradle to Career Network members are going farther by going together. This plenary session will explore the role of community in advancing cradle-to-career outcomes. Speakers from StriveTogether communities will share their stories of how who has a seat at the table impacts the success of every child, cradle to career.

WORKSHOPS: BLOCK 1

9:50AM – 11:05AM
ISSAQUAH
StrivePartnership

Activating community assets and authority for equity and success

- Jamond Foree, StrivePartnership, senior manager for community strategies
- Carol Smith, Roselawn Community Council, president
- Damon Lynch III, New Prospect Baptist Church, pastor

StrivePartnership has adopted a student-centered, ecological model that acknowledges intimate influencers and community-based associations as essential to achieving student success. This workshop will share efforts to authentically practice this approach through an initiative in three neighborhoods to identify, mobilize and enlist overlooked and undervalued local assets.

RESULTS: Participants will learn about how to build authentic, mutually beneficial partnerships with grassroots participants in neighborhoods often viewed primarily for their deficits.

9:50AM – 11:05AM
KIRKLAND
StriveTogether

Aligned for impact: Join a policy community of practice

- Christian Motley, StriveTogether, senior manager of policy and partnerships

StriveTogether Cradle to Career Network members are taking on emergent roles at every level of government as policy advocates for better outcomes for kids. This session will launch a community of practice to cultivate a network of leaders to share strategies, learning and tools to effectively engage the policy-making process. Join this session to learn how to get involved.

RESULTS: Participants will connect to and build a new network of leaders committed to policy change, sharing recent policy wins from communities across the Network.

9:50AM – 11:05AM
COLOMBIA
Better Together Central Oregon

Allocating resources for impact: Continuous improvement and outcome-based budgeting

- Katie Condit, Better Together Central Oregon, executive director
- Whitney Swander, Better Together Central Oregon, data manager

How do we deploy limited resources in a way that increases stakeholder engagement and maximizes impact? Better Together shares how it incorporates the principals of outcome-based budgeting to increase transparency and engagement in shared resource allocation and evaluation.

RESULTS: Participants will understand how outcome-based budgeting can align resources and drive for measurable results among partners.
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 11, 2018

9:50AM – 11:05AM
MEDINA
Bold Goals Coalition of Central Alabama

Beyond scale: Leveraging regional systems leadership into statewide change
• Kristina Scott, Alabama Possible, executive director
• Dan Stephens, United Way of Central Alabama, vice president of community impact in education

State policy can create barriers to sustainable systems change. In this interactive workshop, the Bold Goals Coalition of Central Alabama and Alabama Possible will share experiences advocating for student-level completion data for federal student aid and equip attendees to tackle statewide advocacy campaigns.

RESULTS: Participants will understand how to use advocacy to break down barriers to success for all students and enhance their own advocacy toolkit.

9:50AM – 11:05AM
JEFFERSON
E3 Alliance

Building an equity movement
• Dr. Colette Pierce Burnette, president and CEO, Huston-Tillotson University
• Susan Dawson, E3 Alliance, executive director
• Angela Ward, M.Ed., Austin Independent School District, administrative supervisor, Race & Equity, Cultural Proficiency & Inclusiveness, Office of Academics

This interactive session takes a deep dive into equity-focused, data-driven collaboration in Austin. Topics include roles and responsibilities of P16 partners, implicit bias, what closes ethnicity gaps in academic performance and how to discuss institutional racism and systemic inequalities with cross-sector constituencies.

RESULTS: Participants will understand how to build a comprehensive, regional strategy to promote equity and receive concrete examples of interventions and tools aimed to drive systems change.

9:50AM – 11:05AM
SENeca
Higher Expectations for Racine County

Creating the chameleon: Sharing roles between backbone and community partners
• Matt Snyder, Higher Expectations for Racine County, data director
• DeAnn Possehl, Higher Expectations for Racine County, postsecondary education and training network facilitator
• Lynn Debilzen, Higher Expectations for Racine County and Building Our Future, manager of birth to 8 initiatives

On the path to proof point, Higher Expectations used a variety of creative solutions to staff its backbone and drive alignment with partners. Come learn about these innovative arrangements, including splitting an early grade position with Building Our Future and securing a loaned higher education executive to lead postsecondary work.

RESULTS: Participants will learn about innovative staffing solutions through sharing or blending roles with key community partners, and discuss the benefits and challenges of such arrangements.
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 11, 2018

9:50AM – 11:05AM

Equity at the center of adaptive challenges in collective impact: A postsecondary example

- Sharifa Rowe, Thriving Together, neutral facilitator/collective impact manager
- Dr. Alexander Kurz, Thriving Together/Arizona State University, data strategist

The education system has been designed to create inequitable outcomes. This workshop will show how to redesign the system using data to alleviate disparities for students and illustrate a framework to view systemic barriers at the postsecondary level as both a technical problem and adaptive challenge.

RESULTS: Participants will define and understand technical problems and adaptive challenges in collective impact work.

9:50AM – 11:05AM

First1KDaysNY: Redesigning the health care delivery system for children 0-3 across New York

- Juliette Price, The Albany Promise, director
- Kalin Scott, NYS Medicaid, deputy director
- Dr. Manjanath, Albany Medical Center, chief medical officer

Working with the Medicaid program in New York, The Albany Promise launched the nation’s first value-based payment project in health care. Taking this to scale, the partnership and Medicaid program then launched a statewide commission to bring cross-sector innovations to the 2.2 million children on Medicaid in New York.

RESULTS: Participants will understand how Medicaid can be used as a platform to deliver interventions and results for low-income children during their most critical developmental years.

9:50AM – 11:05AM

Making moments matter: A communitywide communications strategy

- Tracy McDaniel, Mission: Graduate, ECAP coordinator
- Emily Padilla, Mission: Graduate, communications manager
- Derek Kuit, Mission: Graduate, research scientist

Babies are born learning, and early social and physical environments matter. How do we communicate that to families? Learn about Mission: Graduate’s attachment and literacy-focused communications campaign, done in partnership with service providers, youth, city government and other non-traditional partners. Participants will consider how they might implement a similar approach.

RESULTS: Participants will learn about the implementation of a communitywide early childhood messaging campaign and how to develop one in their own communities.
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 11, 2018

9:50AM – 11:05AM
GREENWOOD
P16 Plus Council of Greater Bexar County

Restoring justice: Collective impact and community safety strategies

- Ryan Lugalia-Hollon, Ph.D., P16 Plus Council of Greater Bexar County, executive director
- Daniel Cooper, Ph.D., Center for Equitable Cities, executive director
- Chellie Fernandez, P16 Plus Council of Greater Bexar County, My Brother’s Keeper – San Antonio manager

How do we create a future where law enforcement is only one element of a broader public safety strategy? Where young people no longer have to take matters into their own hands? Drawing on lessons from two cities, this workshop explores the role of collective impact partnerships in creating answers.

RESULTS: Participants will bridge their equity efforts to reduce mass incarceration; make policy arguments that grow investments in children and youth services; and better understand how to build out community-based safety strategies.

9:50AM – 11:05AM
RAVENNA AB
StriveTogether 101

- Parvathi “Parv” Santhosh-Kumar, StriveTogether, senior director of impact
- Mike Mozina, StriveTogether, senior manager of network advancement

This workshop is for leadership table members and school district staff interested in learning more about StriveTogether. The workshop will provide an overview of the Cradle to Career Network, including the Theory of Action and common terminology. Attendees will learn how to leverage the Network to support local efforts while connecting with peers from across the country.

RESULTS: Participants will learn how StriveTogether uses the Theory of Action to support partnerships to transform systems locally and support student achievement and determine what benefits are available through the national Network to support their contributions to local work.

9:50AM – 11:05AM
BOREN
Partnership for Children

Too many collective impacts to make an impact: Aligning a regional effort

- Debbie Lieberman, Partnership for Children, director, strategy and evaluation
- Tia Anzelotti, Partnership for Children, vice president, partnerships

As many collective impact efforts have emerged, Partnership for Children has seen them compete over expertise, partners and funding. In 2017, the partnership began to explore how multiple efforts can maximize efficiencies, benefit from one another’s best practices, leverage regional voice and diffuse competition, and preserve localized identity and ownership.

RESULTS: Participants will explore themes around reaching community-level impact, scalability, partnership/community ownership and fundraising, and clarifying the backbone’s role and value.
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 11, 2018

9:50AM – 11:05AM
RAVENNA C
Seeding Success

What does this mean? Teaching partners to understand data
- Kayla Brooks, Seeding Success, network manager
- Cortney Robertson, Seeding Success, network facilitator
- Karen Bouldin, Seeding Success, continuous improvement specialist

Using continuous improvement, Seeding Success adapted data use and literacy training to better support partners. Learn about the two-part framework: the online modules and in-person workshop. Emphasis will be placed on how to assess partner readiness to participate and mastery of information and how to provide follow-up support and engagement.

RESULTS: Participants will develop a plan for training partners to understand what data is, what it means and how to use it.

2:35PM – 3:50PM
ISSAQUAH
Raise DC

Accelerating progress through collaboration and data sharing

- Laurie Wingate, Raise DC, former executive director
- Kimberly Hanauer, District of Columbia Public Schools, director, college preparedness programs

Over the past two years, the community of Washington, D.C., has made progress toward creating a collaborative environment to accelerate college access and enrollment work. Raise DC will share lessons from aligning organizations on student-level goals, using data sharing to drive strategy and building a culture that embraces data use.

RESULTS: Participants will understand the complexities and opportunities related to college enrollment and will be introduced to a framework for success through the use of student-level data.

2:35PM – 3:50PM
RAVENNA C
Eastside Pathways

Developing local community leaders through grassroots community outreach

- Cathy Habib, Eastside Pathways, lead facilitator
- Stephanie Cherrington, Eastside Pathways, executive director
- Alma Gonzalez, NISO, founder and president

The workshop will share a case study of the Eastside Pathways Promotores Project, which trained members of the Latino community in Seattle’s Eastside to serve as community leaders and connect families to services and education. Presenters will also share the project’s survey, which gave insights into the Latino community’s needs.

RESULTS: Participants will understand a model to train grassroots community leaders and how to support these leaders to build a stronger link between the community and organizations.

2:35PM – 3:50PM
MEDINA
Seeding Success

Integrating systems to streamline parent consent for data sharing

- Cate Joyce, Seeding Success, director of continuous improvement
- Jessica Lotz, Shelby County Schools, director of performance management

Seeding Success and Shelby County Schools have partnered to include the partnership’s informed consent form in the district’s student registration process, improving efficacy and efficiency. Learn about the adaptive work that led to this solution and how this alignment will continue to support student success.

RESULTS: Participants will understand how relationship-building can lead to system integrations and learn about a process for using data for continuous improvement.
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 11, 2018

2:35PM – 3:50PM

VIRGINIA

All Hands Raised

OPERATIONALIZING EQUITY: ADDRESSING DISPROPORTIONATE DISCIPLINE THROUGH SCHOOL-BASED, CROSS-SECTOR IMPROVEMENT TEAMS

• Ben Baldizon, All Hands Raised, associate director, partnership and system development
• Jeanie-Marie Price, All Hands Raised, vice president, communication
• Nate Waas Shull, All Hands Raised, vice president, partnerships

It’s relatively easy to talk about equity, but operationalizing it is another story. Come learn about All Hands Raised’s approach to facilitating site-based improvement teams and cross-site learning opportunities to address disproportionate discipline, particularly as it impacts students of color and boys.

RESULTS: Participants will understand how cradle-to-career partnerships can sustain racial equity as a guiding systems-level priority while also operationalizing it at the practice level in targeted school communities.

2:35PM – 3:50PM

RAVENNA AB

Generation Next
Promise Partnership of Salt Lake

PART 1: LIFE CYCLES OF LEADERSHIP TABLES

• Kathy Merchant, StriveTogether, senior fellow
• Scott McLeod, United Way of Salt Lake, vice president of collective impact partnerships
• Michelle Walker, Generation Next, executive director

StriveTogether Cradle to Career Network members’ leadership tables may struggle to sustain long-term accountability and action commitments. This workshop will share the leadership journeys, moving from talk to action, of StrivePartnership, Promise Partnership of Salt Lake and Generation Next. A companion workshop (following at 4:10 p.m.) will focus on activation tips and tools.

RESULTS: Participants will understand the leadership journeys of three Cradle to Career Network partnerships and begin to consider how to support accountability and action among leadership table members.

2:35PM – 3:50PM

BOREN

Bridging Richmond

PARTNERING IN EQUITY: USING DATA TO DRIVE COLLECTIVE ACTION

• Stephanie Odera, Bridging Richmond, partnership associate director
• Jason Smith, Bridging Richmond, partnership executive director

In this interactive workshop, participants will use data to illuminate equity gaps within a system and create a preliminary equity action plan. The workshop will also provide an overview of Bridging Richmond’s equity-driven data collection and implementation strategies used to inform work in the region.

RESULTS: Participants will understand how to use data to drive collective action toward equitable outcomes in their communities.
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 11, 2018

2:35PM – 3:50PM
SENeca
StriveTogether

Rapid cycle improvement: Using PDSAs and real-time data to change outcomes

- Heidi Black, StriveTogether, director of collaborative improvement
- Davida Casey, StriveTogether, manager of coaching and programs

StriveTogether has adapted rapid cycle continuous improvement techniques to fit the context of cradle-to-career work and to accelerate outcome improvement. Join this session to learn how to use plan-do-study-act (PDSA) cycles and identify real-time qualitative and quantitative data — two key components of rapid cycle continuous improvement.

RESULTS: Participants will understand how to use PDSA cycles in their work to improve outcomes for every child, cradle to career, and will learn about how to identify qualitative and quantitative data sources.

2:35PM – 3:50PM
UNIVERSITY
Equality of Opportunity

Restoring the American dream: Leveraging big data to support policy action

- David Williams, Equality of Opportunity, director of policy

A defining feature of the “American Dream” is upward income mobility: the ideal that children have a higher standard of living than their parents. The Equality of Opportunity Project’s research shows that children’s prospects of earning more than their parents have fallen from 90 percent to 50 percent over the past half-century. David Williams will discuss how big data can help us understand what has led to the erosion of the American Dream — and how local policymakers and civic leaders can revive it for future generations.

RESULTS: This workshop will share how to use local estimate of mobility to inform strategic investments in communities.
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 11, 2018

2:35PM – 3:00PM
COLOMBIA
North Country Thrive
School readiness: Developing a new early learning culture
• Brittany Trybendis, North Country Thrive, director
This workshop will share North Country Thrive’s success and strategies in increasing access to early learning, including supporting an additional 300 early education slots through $2.1 million in grants. The partnership used data it collected and designed a program to blend models to improve the educational supports for pre-k students.

RESULTS: Participants will determine how their work can intersect in early learning, including engaging early education professionals and focusing on data.

4:10PM – 5:25PM
RAVENNA AB
Promise Partnership of Salt Lake

Backbone alignment in community schools, neighborhoods and CANs
• Amy Ahrens Terpstra, United Way of Salt Lake, senior director of network partnerships
• Lindsey Edwards, United Way of Salt Lake, senior director of civic partnerships
• Lauren VandenBirge, United Way of Salt Lake, senior director of community school partnerships

This workshop will explore United Way of Salt Lake’s efforts to operationalize backbone work in networks, communities and schools. Sharing tools, templates and assessments, presenters will demonstrate how to adapt traditional continuous improvement models to clarify the common backbone functions while fostering alignment, communication and accountability.

RESULTS: Participants will learn how to operationalize the role of the backbone in different contexts and plan their next steps to create better alignment among networks, communities, schools and leadership councils.

SENECA
FutureReady Columbus

Building a community of practice through the lens of equity and social-emotional learning
• Marguerethe Jaede, FutureReady Columbus, director of community engagement
• LaShaun Carter, Franklin County Children Services, director of strategy, diversity and evaluation services

This workshop will outline how FutureReady Columbus embedded an equity lens to social-emotional learning to build a community of practice focused on continuous improvement. FutureReady Columbus will share the process of strengthening relationships between organizations, opening a pathway for thoughtful, data-informed collaboration between out-of-school time organizations, schools and funders.

RESULTS: Participants will understand the connection between social-emotional learning and long-term life outcomes and understand the value of centering equity in the continuous improvement process.

Continuous improvement in school districts

SCHOOL DISTRICT STAFF

VIRGINIA

StriveTogether

Defining success

- Andy Robles, Bridge the Gap College Prep, high school and college prep director
- Elizabeth Stoner, Marin Promise Partnership and Tamalpais High School, manager of collaborative action and success network equity coordinator

Marin Promise Partnership shares an experience in continuous improvement. Marin City community partners placed 70 percent of target ninth-grade students into college prep math, only to discover eight weeks into the year that just 15 percent were passing. This workshop will share strategies the team used to redefine success.

RESULTS: Participants will understand how a team used creative thinking to identify factors, facilitate high-level collaboration and monitor site-specific data to track progress.

4:10PM – 5:25PM

BOREN

The Commit Partnership

Creating systemic change in early childhood education through collaborative efforts

- Kimberly Manns, The Commit Partnership, managing director, Early Matters Dallas
- Michael Wood, The Commit Partnership, advocacy associate

Early Matters Dallas will share insights from two efforts to improve early education through collaboration among diverse stakeholders: facilitating hundreds of stakeholders to identify public policy solutions and unifying eight school districts for a regional prekindergarten enrollment campaign. Participants will learn how to involve community members in systematic change through public and private channels.

RESULTS: Participants will learn about an innovative approach to influence behavior and programmatic change among school districts and gain a template for collaborative agenda setting among grassroots stakeholders.

Every Child Capital: What’s next for ‘pay for success’ financing
• Greg Landsman, Every Child Capital, strategic fund advisor
• Leslie Maloney, Every Child Capital, fund chair
• Jake Segal, Social Finance, vice president of advisory services
This workshop will share the approach of venture philanthropy fund Every Child Capital, launched and supported by StrivePartnership in Cincinnati. Learn the future of pay for success and outcomes-based investment work and hear about current grants supported by Every Child Capital and Social Finance.
RESULTS: Participants will learn the latest in “pay for success” and “outcomes-based” investing and explore these opportunities for their communities.

4:10PM – 5:25PM
ISSAQUAH
Design Impact

Human-centered design: Rooting our work in community voice
• Sarah Corlett, Design Impact, director of community development and strategy
This workshop will share tools for understanding the motivations, behaviors and beliefs of key stakeholders, which deeply affect the design of any intervention. Participants will learn and practice human-centered design-based tools like empathic interviewing so they can return to their communities and hear authentic stories that contextualize data.
RESULTS: Participants will learn how to apply human-centered design-based tools to understand the motivations, behaviors and belief of key program stakeholders.

Equal Measure

Three years of measuring civic infrastructure development: What have we learned and what does it mean?

• Justin Piff, Equal Measure, senior director

During this session, Equal Measure will present findings from its three-year evaluation of StriveTogether’s Cradle to Career Network. Trends in civic infrastructure development across a diverse set of communities will be highlighted. Participants will have an opportunity to discuss these findings and explore their implications for their own work.

RESULTS: Participants will learn about trends in civic infrastructure development, including common strengths and areas for continued focus across the Network.

Equal or fair? Cradle-to-career success through collective impact
Metropolitan Ballroom

- Derran Wimer, Summit Education Initiative, executive director
- Matt Deevers, Summit Education Initiative, senior research associate

On the journey from cradle to career, some students consistently progress toward prosperity, while others face setbacks and hardship. During this interactive simulation, audience members will participate as fictional students or student advocates. Everyone in the “community” plays a role. The goal: Increase personal and regional prosperity through educational attainment. The challenge: use collective action to allocate resources and promote equity and opportunity for all.

WORKSHOPS: BLOCK 4

10:45AM – 12:10PM
ISSAQUAH
Promise Partnership of Salt Lake

Building community leadership through grassroots organizing
• Igor Limansky, United Way of Salt Lake, director of grassroots engagement and communication

To create social change, partnerships must engage the community as equal participants and leaders in the process. This workshop will share effective organizing examples in adult education, early learning and parent leadership, including tools for personal story training, building social connections and creating a data structure.

RESULTS: Participants will understand the process used to engage partner organizations and community members in community organizing and leadership building efforts.

10:45AM – 12:10PM
COLOMBIA
Achieve Brown County
Milwaukee Succeeds

Data infrastructure to inform early childhood developmental care systems
• John Meurer, Medical College of Wisconsin, professor/director, Institute for Health & Equity
• Tim Coughlin, United Way of Greater Milwaukee and Waukesha County, manager, Milwaukee Succeeds Kindergarten Readiness Partnership
• Adam Hardy, Achieve Brown County, executive director

This workshop will share eight data infrastructure approaches, including from a Milwaukee community agency survey pilot, a child care program shared service network, a countywide social services triage system and the State Office of Children’s Mental Health Reports. Participants will learn why developmental screening is foundational to early childhood data infrastructure, identify key partners for systems change and gain approaches to community-wide data sharing.

RESULTS: Participants will understand eight approaches to sharing data to inform continuous improvement of early childhood developmental care systems.

10:45AM – 12:10PM
SENeca
Student Success Network

Identifying and sharing promising practices
• Alexandra Lotero, Student Success Network, director, data
• Ali Slack, Student Success Network, director, continuous improvement

Student Success Network creates, grows and fuels a community of organizations collectively closing the opportunity gap. In this workshop, Student Success Network will share strategies and tools for identifying bright spots and for identifying, documenting and sharing promising practices that lead to those bright spots and further success.

RESULTS: Participants will gain strategies for using data to improve and learn about promising practices in social-emotional learning.
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 12, 2018

10:45AM – 12:10PM

VIRGINIA

Implementing evidence-based changes to increase postsecondary attainment for Latino students

- Dr. Juliet Schiller, Marin Promise Partnership, director of collaborative action
- Dr. Matthew Long, Santa Rosa Junior College, dean of student services
- Tonya Hersch, College of Marin, dean of educational success programs

Marin County has one of the largest college completion equity gaps for Latino students in California. Marin Promise Partnership’s College Completion Team works to identify and eliminate inequities that limit postsecondary attainment for Latino students. This workshop will share evidence-based changes and cross-sector strategies used to work toward this goal.

RESULTS: Participants understand strategies for increasing Latino degree attainment at three of Marin County’s postsecondary institutions, including cross-sector buy-in, data infrastructure and plans to scale the work.

10:45AM – 12:10PM

JEFFERSON

Reframing the work: Equity at the center

- Chloe Moore, Seeding Success, early childhood network facilitator
- Kayla Brooks, Seeding Success, network manager

In the social impact space, equity is the new standard of how we conceptualize progress; but how do we engage in the work of equity intentionally and justly? By exploring two case studies, workshop presenters delineate what it looks like to do the work effectively, both personally and for organizations.

RESULTS: Participants will receive tools and strategies to operationalize equity in their lives, both personally and professionally.

10:45AM – 12:10PM

KIRKLAND

Scaling up summer melt interventions

- Brittany Trybendis, North Country Thrive, director
- Juliette Price, The Albany Promise, director
- Mark Bobb-Semple, The Albany Promise, deputy director

For two years, the Albany community tackled summer melt, the phenomenon of college-bound high school graduates failing to matriculate into college. The community then scaled the work across New York with 18 high schools and 10 colleges. This workshop will share what worked across sites and insights about scaling success.

RESULTS: Participants will learn how the partnerships used rapid cycle continuous improvement to solve a local problem and then took interventions and process to scale.

King County Housing Authority

Using housing authority partnerships to access families and improve outcomes
• Ted Dezember, King County Housing Authority, senior manager of educational initiatives and youth programs
• Cara Ianni, King County Housing Authority, education programs coordinator

Housing authorities are positioned to play a crucial role in cradle-to-career collective impact through their access to low-income families and onsite infrastructure. Learn how the King County Housing Authority has impacted academic outcomes through data-driven efforts and community partnerships and take back strategies to use with your local housing authority.

RESULTS: Participants will understand the strengths unique to a housing authority’s role in collective impact and learn how to collaborate with their local housing authorities.
