Rev Partnership is a regional education backbone catalyzing system solutions across Tarrant County’s educational ecosystem that educates 750,000 students and employs 35,200 educators. Its vision is a commitment to the best public education system for students, schools, and community by fostering relationships between Tarrant County’s public education system, business ecosystem, and social support infrastructure for students to thrive. Rev achieves this vision by empowering education leaders to achieve better results through collaboration.

Tarrant County ISDs represent 7% of all students in the state of Texas, making Rev Partnership’s collective approach even more impressive when considering the county’s scale and diversity. To benchmark this scale, this number of students is larger than the entire school-aged population of 15 other states and the collective budgets of Tarrant County ISDs is $3.5B. Students are educated across 569 public school campuses making Tarrant County’s public education system a larger employer than regional companies including Lockheed Martin, BNSF Railway, Bell Helicopter, or American Airlines. The 17 ISDs, which are rural, urban and suburban, range in student enrollments of 75,000 to 2,500 and economic disadvantage of 94 percent to one percent. This opportunity for impact is significant not only for students, neighborhoods, and communities – but for the entire state.

Rev fills a gap by creating a forum for the county’s education system to leverage their collective scale for system impact.
